

A-to-V

An Interactive Map-Based Visualization
Search Tool for Oral History Collections

What does A-to-V do?

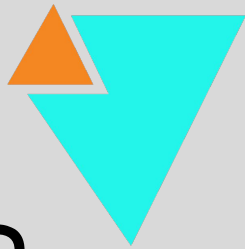

A-to-V is a one-stop central database where collectors of oral histories provide searchable information for and direct access to audio files for users.

A-to-V's Content

- Crowd-sourced data and audio files from private collections.
- Public audio archives (e.g., NYPL, Library of Congress).

Who Will Use A-to-V?

Those who wish to make their oral history archives available to the public.

&

Oral history researchers, including:

- Students
- Scholars
- Educators
- Documentarians

How Do Collectors of Oral Histories Use A-to-V?

Provide access to audio files and information on content so users can easily search the database for what they need.

How Do Researchers Use A-to-V?

Search database by information fields and/or click directly on homepage map.